

Demystifying Innovation: Create, Communicate, & Collaborate

Growth Through Learning

In today's competitive and dynamic healthcare climate, it is critical to develop leadership skills to help team members reach their full potential. Our goal at Philips Healthcare is to train tomorrow's healthcare leaders today and provide support across all levels of the healthcare continuum.

Philips Leadership Excellence - PLE150

Make Innovation simple, practical, and personal for yourself and others.

In this workshop, you will get the chance to develop some of the most needed leadership skills - soft skills of collaboration, communication, and creativity that can help your organization innovate for the future. Learn tools, techniques, and methods to connect with others to co-create and communicate your ideas and innovations in a more engaging way. Learn about how to find and tell a story, and make your communication more visual and physical with prototypes and demos. This workshop will engage you in an innovative, interactive approach to collaboration, designed to focus conversations and build relationships.

Demystifying Innovation (PLE150)

Course objectives.

Upon completion of this course, the participant will increase their ability to:

- Work on your own innovation project and be assisted through quick, one-on-one conversations that could lead to new solutions, knowledge, resources, and collaborations.
- Design and communicate a new concept you are fostering or a challenge you are working on solving and get insight from fellow participants.
- Participate in a true culture of collaboration and innovation in action while working on a challenge together to communicate at a higher level.

Participants Receive

- After the Workshop: Access to online tutorials, guides, and workshops to keep collaborating, creating, and communicating.
